Women's Wisdom: Women's Summer Retreat August 21-28, 2021

Update: Since returning in March 2020 from a conference in Egypt, I've been doing my psychiatric-Jungian analytic practice virtually, and participating in meetings, interviews, Shift courses and international conferences via Zoom. In a little less than a month, I will be traveling to Montana to do my first in person workshop since the pandemic began. I will be co-leading a workshop at the Feathered Pipe Ranch August 21-28, with Monika Wikman. It will be the first time I will be there without the physical presence of India Supera, founder of the Feathered Pipe and organizer of women's pilgrimages I've been part of to sacred sites in Ireland, England, India, Egypt and Europe. The workshop is limited to 27 women and until recently it was full and had a waiting list. Now there are 5 or 6 openings.

Some thoughts: we are temporarily "here" where we are embodied and have "hints and guesses" about what comes next. This is a special time to take a time out and to share feelings, losses and insights. I trust synchronicity will bring this announcement to the few women for whom this invitation may be meant for. I felt nudged from inside to do this. I also am thinking about the four phases of the Moon. The three phases of women's lives begins with menstruation (mens = moon), maiden-mother-crone, followed by the dark of the moon and what its meaning might be.

Holding in spirit the loving and supportive presence of their soul sister and Feathered Pipe Foundation founder India Supera, acclaimed authors, Jungian analysts, activists and leading voices in women's spirituality, Jean Bolen and Monika Wikman return to the Ranch for their second women's wisdom retreat. India has enjoyed every women's retreat that Jean has led—with Jan Lovett-Keen, Brooke Medicine Eagle, Barbara McAfee and Monika Wikman—and the 2021 program is certain to be a celebration of the strong, loving and inclusive spirit with which India founded the Feathered Pipe.

This women's summer retreat supports women who wish to explore their inner lives in an exquisitely nourishing nature setting.

Together, we will tune into womb wisdom, our connection to Mother Earth, moon cycles and the particular seasons of our lives, as the land provides the 'alchemical vessel' for our exploration, integration and growth. We will meet in large and small circles throughout the week, all connected by a sacred center, listening to stories and myths that teach us how to use archetypal energies to guide and direct our lives.

Tapping into highly experiential modalities such as Jung's active imagination, dreamwork, art, journal writing, movement, bodywork, time in nature and ritual, we will 'seed' the imagination in a sacred process of deep inner exploration and self-expression. Building the shared field in community, this workshop brings to life the enriching fruits of inspiration, fresh perspective, compassion, shadow integration, healing, insight and laughter.
