

The Beginning of This 2025 New Year Feels Potentially Positive While Not knowing What to Expect

I am sharing my thoughts—all of us are still here on this Earth, and if we have hope with the beginning a New Year, we may find ourselves feeling positive. I do, especially when recalling events in which fears shifted or sensing or seeing the presence of loved ones who are now on the other side.

For those who sense our invisible heart at the center of our chest, energy grows in this care and when we send our love it makes a difference. The more love, healing and care we give away, the more this essence of love continues to grow in us as well.

Health issues in the last few years added to my focus on what really matters. It struck me initially that several important events should be shared since I had begun writing Ever Widening Circles & Mystical Moments and that more time remains. My biographical and historical book is filled with photographs. I had completed the writing and was recovering from surgery and required a lot of sleep. At the same time, I also continued doing sessions with people that began working with me earlier and during these past years. Dreams stirred their early past experiences which came into the sessions of people for whom it mattered.

Special coincidences have come quietly and unexpectedly into my life. A small intelligent introverted adult quiet female mixed dog (Danielle/Dani-doggie) came into my life "accidentally." It took months before she barked and became my house guard. At the end of writing my autobiography when I was exhausted, another special coincidence or blessing came into my life. I met Lynda Carre, who organized the four pages of photos at the end of each chapter that fit the events and feelings of each chapter.

Grateful for 2024, Heart Open for 2025

In 2025 another gust of seeds will be released into the synchronous winds as my fourteenth book, and the only personal memoir of my life, Ever Widening Circles & Mystical Moments, will make its way into the world in March. I have great trust this book will find its way to those it needs to, just as the rest of my books have done.

There is much to look forward to and much to do in 2025. May our hearts be our compass, guiding us towards The Millionth Circle and the egalitarian, peaceful, healthy world we wish to share.

Goddesses in Everywoman

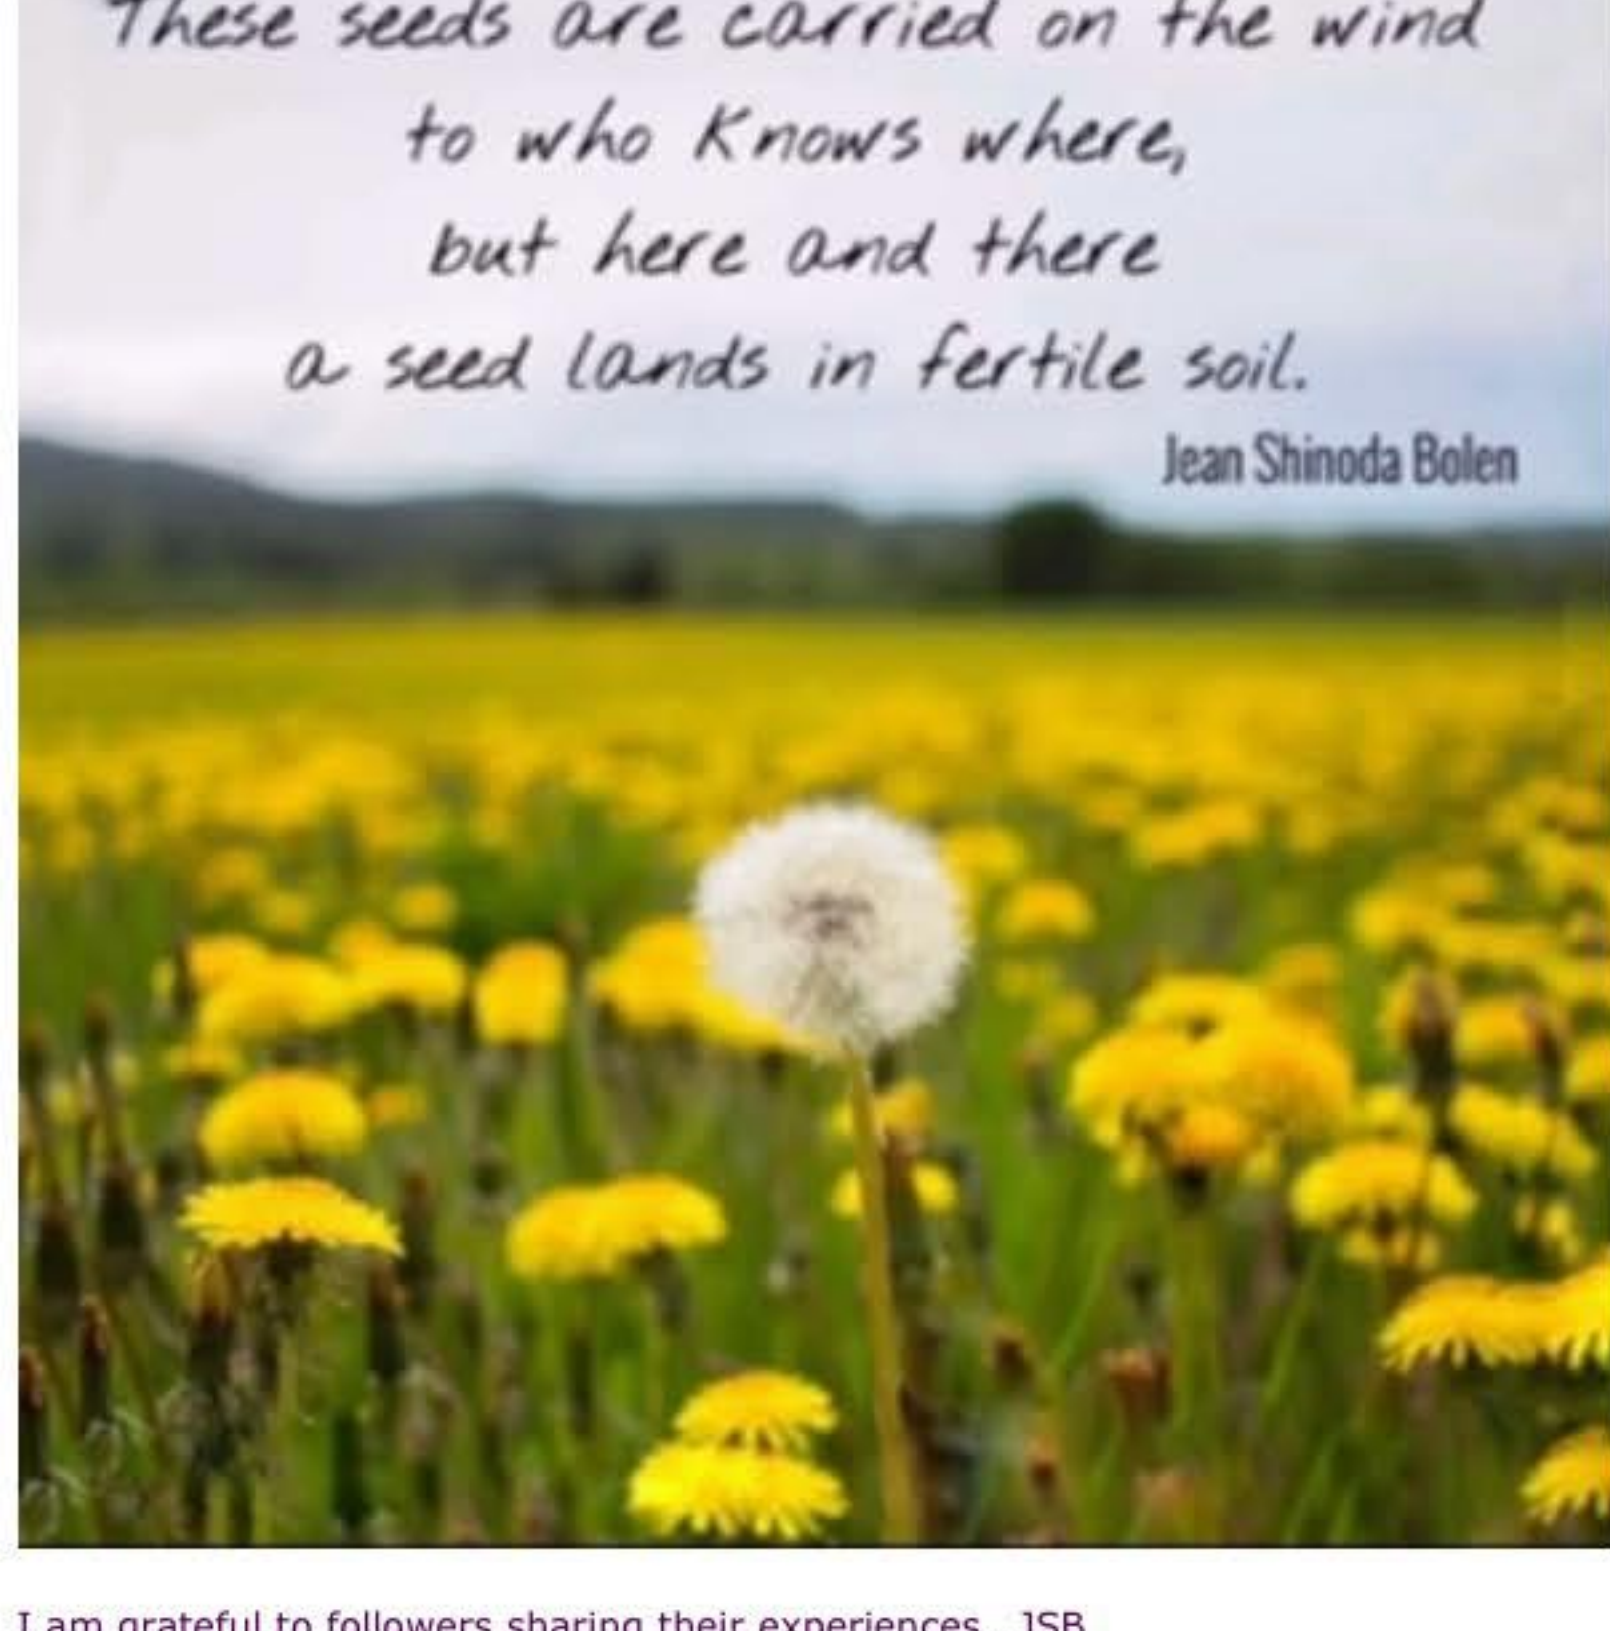

"The highest value in this book lies in the moments of recognition it provides: that insightful second when we understand and internalize, when we recognize what we ourselves have experienced, feel trust because of that truth, and then are taken one step further."

The Dandelion Effect

I am grateful to followers sharing their experiences._JSB

"I've taken classes on your books. I've passed down what I've learned to my adult daughter, who like me has read and re-read your books. She has done the same with her best friend and all three of us have had reading and discussion parties. We've had long discussions about archetypes in the car as we get coffee. Your work is alive, and is the one remaining heartfelt connection I have to a since-departed friend and mentor. Your dandelion seeds may have gone far beyond what you ever originally thought. Have a great new year and thank you"

40th Anniversary Goddesses in Everywoman

As you will hear in this archival presentation from 1985, I had no idea about the impact of my book, Goddesses in Everywoman, would have through these years. I am heartened that its message of powerful archetypes in women's lives remains strong, inspiring, and deeply meaningful even four decades later, with many more to come! Since 1985, Goddesses in Everywoman has been translated into 25 languages and distributed internationally by 32 publishers. If you have not yet read it, or listened to it as an audiobook, I invite you to start the New Year by doing so. Listening to this archival presentation from the 1985 presentation for the San Diego Friends of Jung will also give you some helpful Goddess wisdom about being your own authentic self. _JSB
